(vii) in the event that we refuse to accept instructions, we will use reasonable efforts to notify and explain the reasons for this to you. We will not be liable for any expense, loss or damage incurred by you if we fail to notify you of such refusal of instructions unless this is a result of our gross negligence, bad faith, willful default or fraud. We will further not be liable for any consequential or special damage.

3.5. Performance and Settlement

3.5.1. You must promptly deliver all instructions, money, documents or assets as required for any TRANSACTION, thus enabling us to perform our obligations in a timely manner.

market price, to enable us to complete settlement of the TRANSACTION. Where reasonably practicable, we will attempt to notify you before we take such action.

In such circumstances, we will try where possible to secure and offer a price that is better than that at which the error TRANSACTION was executed.

3.6.5. Where we have bought or sold in accordance with your instructions, except in situations where we have traded on the wrong delivery/expiry month or at the wrong exercise price of the relevant contract, then we may in accordance with any RELEVANT RULES offset any loss arising from that trade against any gain achieved for you in the course of correctly satisfying your instructions, thus offering you only a net gain, if any.

PART II: NETTING

(a) Rights on Default: On the occurrence of an EVENT OF DEFAULT, we may exercise our rights under this clause, except that in the case of the occurrence of any EVENT OF DEFAULT specified in paragraphs (b) or (c) under Part I of this Clause 12 (each a "BANKRUPTCY DEFAULT"), the automatic termination provision in Part II paragraph (c) of this clause shall apply.

(b) Liquidation Date: Subject to the following sub-clause, at any time following the occurrence of an EVENT OF DEFAULT, we may, by notice to you, specify a date (the "LIQUIDATION DATE") for the termination and liquidation of any ongoing TRANSACTIONS in accordance with this clause.

(c) Automatic Termination: The date of the occurrence of any BANKRUPTCY DEFAULT shall automatically constitute a LIQUIDATION DATE, without the need for any notice by us, and the provisions of the following sub-clause shall then apply. We can, however, in our sole discretion, opt for the continuation of these T&C, upon notice to you in 5 (five) days from the day we acknowledge such BANKRUPTCY DEFAULT, in which case these T&C will remain in force and unaltered.

(d) Calculation of Liquidation Amount: Upon the occurrence of a LIQUIDATION DATE:

(i) neither of us shall be obliged to make any further payments or deliveries under any ongoing TRANSACTIONS which would, but for this clause, have become due for performance on or after the LIQUIDATION DATE, and such obligations shall be satisfied by settlement (whether by payment, set-off or otherwise) of the LIQUIDATION AMOUNT;

(ii) we shall (on, or as soon as reasonably practicable after, the LIQUIDATION DATE) determine (discounting if appropriate), in respect of each ongoing Transaction referred to in paragraph (a) the total cost, loss or, as the case may be, gain, in each case in the BASE CURRENCY thereof (and, if appropriate, including any loss of bargain, cost of funding or, without duplication, cost, loss or, as the case may be, gain as a result of the termination, liquidation, obtaining, performing or re-establishing of any hedge or related trading position) as a result of the termination, pursuant to these T&C, of each payment or delivery which would otherwise have been required to be made under such TRANSACTION (assuming satisfaction of each applicable condition precedent and having due regard, if appropriate, to such market quotations published on, or official settlement prices set by the relevant market as may be available on, or immediately preceding, the date of calculation); and

(iii) we shall treat each cost or loss to us, determined as above, as a positive amount and each gain by us, so determined, as a negative amount and aggregate all of such amounts to produce a single, net positive or negative amount, denominated in the BASE CURRENCY (the "LIQUIDATION AMOUNT").

(e) Payer: If the LIQUIDATION AMOUNT determined pursuant to this clause is a positive amount, you shall pay it to us and if it is a negative amount, we shall pay it to you. We shall notify you of the LIQUIDATION AMOUNT, and by whom it is payable, immediately after the calculation of such amount.

(f) Other TRANSACTIONS: Where termination and liquidation occur in accordance with this clause, we shall also be entitled, at our discretion, to terminate and liquidate, in accordance with the provisions of this clause, any other TRANSACTIONS entered into between us which are then outstanding.

(g) Payment: The LIQUIDATION AMOUNT shall be paid in the BASE CURRENCY by the close of business on the BUSINESS DAY following the completion of the termination and liquidation under this clause (converted as required by APPLICABLE LAW into any other currency, any costs of such conversion to be borne by you, and (if applicable) deducted from any payment to you). Any LIQUIDATION AMOUNT not paid on the due date shall be treated as an unpaid amount and bear interest according to the United States 30 Day Average Secured Overnight Financing Rate (SOFR) with a floor of 1% (one percent) + 9.99% (nine point ninety nine per cent) per annum for each day for which such amount remains unpaid. If SOFR is above 1% (one per cent), the actual rate shall be the one used. If for any reason we decide that SOFR is not suitable for use herein, including because it is no longer being or will no longer be published or because the regulator with authority over SOFR has determined that it is “non-representative,” then we will determine a replacement rate and mathematical adjustment thereto, and will provide notice to you of such, along with the date on which SOFR will no longer be applicable herein. Below you can find the equation for the interest calculation:

$$\% \text{ Interests} = \text{Number of Delayed Days} \times \frac{(\text{Interest Reference Rate} + 9.99\%)}{360}$$

$$$ \text{ Interests} = \text{Total Amount} \times \text{Number of Delayed Days} \times \frac{(\text{Interest Reference Rate} + 9.99\%)}{360}$$

(h) BASE CURRENCY: For the purposes of any calculation hereunder, we may convert amounts denominated in any other currency into the BASE CURRENCY at such rate prevailing at the time of the calculation as we shall reasonably select.

(i) Payments: Unless a LIQUIDATION DATE has occurred or has been effectively set, we shall not be obliged to make any payment or delivery scheduled to be made by us under a TRANSACTION for as long as an EVENT OF DEFAULT or any event which may become (with the passage of time, notice given, the making of any determination hereunder, or any combination thereof) an EVENT OF DEFAULT with respect to you has occurred and is continuing.

(j) Additional rights: Our rights under this Part II of Clause 12 shall be in addition to, and not in limitation or exclusion of, any other rights which we may have (whether by agreement, operation of law or otherwise).

(k) Application of netting to TRANSACTIONS: This Part II applies to each TRANSACTION entered into or outstanding between us on or after the date these T&C take effect.

(l) Single agreement: These T&C, the particular terms applicable to each TRANSACTION, and all amendments to any such agreements, shall together constitute a single agreement between us. We both acknowledge that all TRANSACTIONS entered into on or after the date that these T&C take effect are entered into in reliance upon the fact that each agreement and all such terms constitute a single agreement between us.

(m) Other agreements: The provisions of this clause shall not apply to any TRANSACTION which is subject to liquidation and termination under another agreement. However, any sum resulting from a liquidation and termination under another agreement, may be set off against the LIQUIDATION AMOUNT.

(n) Default: Upon an EVENT OF DEFAULT or at any time after we have determined, in our absolute discretion, you have not performed (or we reasonably believe that you will not be able or willing to perform in the future) any of your obligations to us, in addition to any rights under this Part II we shall be entitled to the following without prior notice to you:

(i) to sell such of your investments as are in our possession or in the possession of any nominee or third party appointed under or pursuant to these T&C, in each case as we may in our absolute discretion select or and upon such terms as we may in our absolute discretion think fit (without being responsible for any loss or diminution in price) in order to realize funds sufficient to cover any amount due by you hereunder;

(ii) to close out, replace or reverse any TRANSACTION, buy, sell, borrow, lend or enter into any other TRANSACTION or take, or refrain from taking, such other action at such time or times and in such manner as, at our sole discretion, we consider necessary or appropriate to cover, reduce or eliminate our loss or liability under or in respect of any of your contracts, positions or commitments.

PART III: TERMINATION WITHOUT DEFAULT

(a) Termination: Unless required by APPLICABLE LAW, either party may terminate these T&C (and the relationship between us) by giving 10 (ten) business days written notice of termination to the other. We may terminate these T&C immediately if you fail to observe or perform any provision hereunder other than in the case of force majeure. Upon termination of these T&C, all amounts payable by you to us will become immediately due and payable including (but without limitation):

(i) all outstanding fees, charges and commissions;

(ii) any dealing expenses incurred by terminating these T&C; and

(iii) any losses and expenses realized in closing out any TRANSACTIONS or settling or concluding outstanding obligations incurred by us on your behalf.

(b) Existing rights: Termination shall not affect then outstanding rights and obligations under these T&C and in relation to outstanding TRANSACTIONS which shall continue to be governed by these T&C and the particular clauses agreed between us in relation to such TRANSACTIONS until all obligations have been fully performed.

13. EXCLUSION OF LIABILITY

13.1. Neither we nor any member of our group nor our respective directors, officers, employees or agents will be liable (whether in contract or in tort or otherwise) for:

PART II - PRODUCTS AND INVESTMENTS

Set out below is an outline of the risks associated with certain generic types of Financial Instruments, which should be read in conjunction with Parts III and IV below.

1. Derivatives, including Options, Futures, Swaps, Forward Rate Agreements, Derivative Instruments for the Transfer of Credit Risk, Contracts for Differences

1.1. Derivatives Generally

A derivative is a financial instrument derived from an underlying asset's value. Rather than trade or exchange the asset itself, an agreement is entered into to exchange money, assets or some other value at some future date based on the underlying asset. There are many types of derivatives, but options, futures and swaps are among the most common. An investor in derivatives often assumes a great deal of risk, and therefore investments in derivatives must be made with caution, especially for smaller or less experienced investors.

Derivatives have high risk connected with them, most predominantly that there is a reliance on future assets. As such this is unpredictable. Options or futures can allow an entity to pay only a premium to bet on the direction in an asset's price, and while this can often lead to large returns if correct, it would lead to a 100% loss (the premium paid) if incorrect. Options or futures sold “short” (i.e. without the seller owning the asset at the time of the sale) may lead to great losses if the price of the derivative rises significantly. If a derivative transaction is particularly large or if the relevant market is illiquid (as may be the case with many privately negotiated off-exchange derivatives), it may not be possible to initiate a transaction or liquidate a position at an advantageous price. On-exchange derivatives are subject, in addition, to the risks of exchange trading in general.

Off-exchange derivatives are contracts entered into with a counterparty and, like any contract, subject to credit risk and the particular terms of the contract (whether one-off or a master agreement) should be considered in all cases.

Derivatives can be used for speculative purposes or as hedges to manage other investment risks. In all cases suitability of the transaction for the particular investor should be considered.

Normal pricing relationships between the underlying asset and the derivative may not exist in all cases. This can occur when, for example, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to assess “fair value”.

The points set out below in relation to different types of derivatives are not only applicable specifically to these derivatives but are also applicable more widely to derivatives generally. All derivatives are potentially subject to the major risk types in Part III below, especially market risk, credit risk and any specific sector risks connected with the underlying asset.

1.2. Futures / Forwards / Forward Rate Agreements

Transactions in futures or forwards involve the obligation to make, or to take, delivery of the underlying asset of the contract at a future date, or in some cases to settle the position with cash. They carry a high degree of risk. The “gearing” or “leverage” often obtainable in futures and forwards trading means that a small deposit or down payment can lead to large losses as well as gains. It also means that a relatively small movement can lead to a proportionately much larger movement in the value of your investment, and this can work against you or in your favor.

Futures and forwards transactions have a contingent liability, and you should be aware of the implications of this. In particular there are margin requirements associated with these products. With all exchange-traded - and most OTC off-exchange - futures and forwards, you will have to pay over in cash, losses incurred on a daily basis to meet margin requirements. If you fail to fulfill these types of margin requirements, the contract concerned may be terminated. See further, items 1 and 2 of Part IV below.

1.3. Options

There are many different types of options with different characteristics subject to the following conditions.

Buying options: Buying options involves less risk than selling options because, if the price of the underlying asset moves against you, you can simply allow the option to lapse. The maximum loss is limited to the premium, plus any commission or other transaction charges.

Writing options: If you write an option, the risk involved is considerably greater than buying options. You may be liable for margin to maintain your position (as explained in 1.2 above) and a loss may be sustained well in excess of the premium received. By writing an option, you accept a legal obligation to purchase or sell the underlying asset if the option is exercised against you, however far the market price has moved away from the exercise price. If you already own the underlying asset which you have contracted to sell (known as “covered call options”) the risk is reduced. If you do not own the underlying asset (known as “uncovered call options”) the risk can be unlimited. Only experienced persons should contemplate writing uncovered options, and then only after securing full details of the applicable conditions and potential risk exposure.

1.4. Swaps

A swap is a derivative where two counterparties exchange one stream of cash flows against another stream. A major risk of old off-exchange derivatives, (including swaps) is known as counterparty risk. If a party, A, wants a fixed interest rate loan and so swaps a variable rate loan with another party, B, thereby swapping payments, this will synthetically create a fixed rate for A. However, if B goes insolvent, A will lose its fixed rate and will be paying a variable rate again. If interest rates have gone up a lot, it is possible that A will struggle to repay. The swap market has grown substantially in recent years, with a large number of banks and investment banking firms acting both as principals and as agents utilizing standardized swap documentation. As a result, the swap market has become liquid but there can be no assurance that a liquid secondary market will exist at any specified time for any particular swap.

PART III - GENERIC RISK TYPES

2. General

The price or value of an investment will depend on fluctuations in the financial markets outside of anyone’s control. Past performance is no indicator of future performance. The nature and extent of investment risks varies between countries and from investment to investment. These investment risks will vary with, inter alia, the type of investment being made, including how the financial products have been created or their terms drafted, the needs and objectives of particular investors, the manner in which a particular investment is made or offered, sold or traded, the location or domicile of the Issuer, the diversification or concentration in a portfolio (e.g. the amount invested in any one currency, security, country or issuer), the complexity of the transaction and the use of leverage. The below risk types could have an impact on each type of investment:

3. Liquidity

The liquidity of an instrument is directly affected by the supply and demand for that instrument. Under certain trading conditions it may be difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price movement if the price rises or falls to such an extent that under the rules of the relevant exchange trading is suspended or restricted. Placing a stop-loss order will not necessarily limit your losses to intended amounts, because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such an order at the stipulated price. In addition, with the off-exchange products, unless the contract terms so provide, the counterparty does not have to terminate the contract early or buy back the product.

4. Credit Risk

Credit risk is the risk of loss caused by borrowers, bond obligors, or counterparties failing to fulfill their obligations, or the risk of such parties credit quality deteriorating.

5. Market Risk

5.1. General: The price of investments goes up and down depending on market supply and demand, investor perception and the prices of any underlying or allied investments or, indeed, sector and economic factors. These can be totally unpredictable.

5.2. Emerging Markets: Price volatility in emerging markets in particular can be extreme. Price discrepancies can be common and market dislocation is not uncommon. Additionally, as news about a country becomes available, the financial markets may react with dramatic upswings and/or downswings in prices during a very short period of time. Emerging markets generally lack the level of transparency, liquidity, efficiency and regulation found in more developed markets. For example, these markets might not have regulations governing manipulation and insider trading or other provisions designed to “level the playing field” with respect to the availability of information and the use or misuse thereof in such markets. They may also be affected by political risk. It may be difficult to employ certain risk management practices for emerging markets investments, such as forward currency exchange contracts or derivatives.

5.3. Insolvency: The insolvency or default of the firm with whom you are dealing, or of any brokers involved with your transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent or, indeed, investments not being returned to you. There is also insolvency risk in relation to the investment itself, for example of the company that issued the bond or of the counterparty to the off-exchange derivatives (where the risk relates to the derivative itself and to any collateral or margin held by the counterparty).

5.4. Currency Risk: In respect of any foreign exchange transactions and transactions in derivatives and securities that are denominated in a currency other than that in which your account is denominated, a movement in exchange rates may have a favorable or an unfavorable effect on the gain or loss achieved on such transactions. The weakening of a country's currency relative to a benchmark currency or the currency of your portfolio will negatively affect the value of an investment denominated in that currency. Currency valuations are linked to a host of economic, social and political factors and can fluctuate greatly, even during intra-day trading. Some countries have foreign exchange controls which may include the suspension of the ability to exchange or transfer currency, or the devaluation of the currency. Hedging can increase or decrease the exposure to any one currency, but may not completely eliminate exposure to changing currency values.

5.6. Interest Rate Risk: Interest rates can rise as well as fall. A risk exists with interest rates that the relative value of a security, especially a bond, will worsen due to an interest rate increase. This could impact negatively on other products.

5.7. Operational Risk: Operational risk, such as breakdowns or malfunctioning of essential systems and controls, including IT systems, can impact on all financial products, but in particular for holders of shares, which equate to a part of the ownership of the company. Business risk, especially the risk that the business is run incompetently or poorly, could also impact on this. Personnel and organizational changes can severely affect such risks and, in general, operational risk may not be apparent from outside of the organization.

PART IV - TRANSACTION AND SERVICE RISKS

6. Contingent Liability Investment Transactions

Contingent liability investment transactions, which are margined, require you to make a series of payments against the purchase price, instead of paying the whole purchase price immediately. If you trade in futures, contracts for differences or sell options, you may sustain a total loss of the margin you deposit with your firm to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you must be responsible for the resulting deficit. Even if a transaction is not margined, it may still carry an obligation to make further payments in certain circumstances over and above any amount paid when you entered the contract. Except as specifically provided by the FCA, your firm may only carry out margined or contingent liability transactions with, or for you, if they are traded on or under the rules of recognized or designated investment exchanges. Transactions which are traded elsewhere may be may exposed to substantially greater risks.

7. Collateral

If you deposit collateral as security with your firm, the way in which it will be treated will vary according to the type of transaction and where it is traded. There could be significant differences in the treatment of your collateral, depending on whether you are trading on a recognized or designated investment exchange (see 3), with the rules of that exchange (and the associated clearing house) applying, or trading on another exchange or, indeed, off-exchange.

You should ascertain from the firm how your collateral will be dealt with upon receipt.

8. Off-Exchange Transactions

Transactions which are traded outside of recognized or designated investment exchanges elsewhere may be exposed to substantially greater risks than those traded on such exchanges.

9. Limited Liability Transactions

Before entering into a limited liability transaction, you should obtain from the firm a formal written statement confirming that the extent of your loss liability on each transaction will be limited to an amount agreed by you before you enter into the transaction. The amount you can lose in limited liability transactions will be less than in other margined transactions, which have no predetermined loss limit. Nevertheless, even though the extent of loss will be subject to the agreed limit, you may sustain the loss in a relatively short time. Your loss may be limited, but the risk of sustaining a total loss to the amount agreed is substantial.

10. Commissions

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain details of all commissions and other charges for which you will be liable. If any charges are not expressed in money terms (for example, as a percentage of contract value), you should obtain a clear and written explanation, including appropriate examples, to establish what such charges are likely to mean in specific money terms.

11. Deposited Cash and Property

The extent to which you may recover your cash or other property may also be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property, which had been specifically identifiable as your own, will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

Your cash or other property may be deposited with a third party who may have a security interest, lien or right of set-off in relation to that property.

12. Non-Readily Realizable Investments

Both exchange listed and traded and off-exchange investments may be non-readily realizable. These are investments in which the market is limited or could become so. Accordingly, it may be difficult to assess their market value and/or to liquidate your position.

13. Strategies

Particular investment strategies will carry their own particular risks. For example, certain strategies, such as “spread” position or a “straddle”, may be as risky as a simple “long” or “short” position.
